Health council outlines plans for committee

The first step in the transfer of control of Minden and Haliburton hospitals from the Red Cross to local representatives began last week at a meeting held at the PineStone Inn. Over 150 residents of both communities and surrounding areas were on hand to hear the chairman of the District Health Council, Austin Birch, explain the procedure which will be followed in the transition.

According to the chairman, a steering committee is to be established in the next month which will study the alternatives open to the local hospitals. This committee will consist of three members of the health council, two representatives of the health profession from each community, two elected representatives from each centre and four members of the general public. The public representatives will be selected on the basis of one each from Minden and Haliburton and one each from the area surrounding each community.

Birch told the audience that district health council representative from Peterborough, Jim Swanston, would act as the chairman of the committee. The chairman invited members of the audience to volunteer to serve on the committee.

The meeting was opened to questions following the presentation of the health council chairman.

He told the gathering that one possible alternative for the two hospitals is a "twinning" with a larger hospital such as those in Lindsay or Peterborough. Birch said that hospitals the size of those in the Highlands, are too small to be operated individually. It was pointed out that even combining the two facilities would not make a large enough unit.

Earl Colson, district co-ordinator for the Ministry of Health told the audience the provincial authorities would not consider opening a hospital with less than 50 beds, however he assured the audience it was not his ministry's intention to close either facility.

This was reaffirmed by Birch who told the gathering that there was no intention on the part of the health council to see either hospital closed. "The health council feels that both facilities should be retained," he commented, "we want to see an improvement in health services to this area."

A representative of the Red Cross from Toronto, John Ackland, told the meeting that twinning helps to reduce the administrative costs of small hospitals, means that health services which aren't normally available at the smaller facility, could be provided on a part-time basis by the larger hospital and that a representative from the local area would be elected to serve on the hospital board of the larger hospital to represent the local interest. He said that twinning could give this area access to such facilities as mental health services and other health professionals who normally would not be available in a community this size.

Ackland noted that the Minden and Haliburton hospitals are being operated in an economical manner now, but he also pointed out that comparison with larger hospitals is unfair because of the wider range of services being offered. He also pointed out much of the administration duties are carried out in Toronto at the moment.

Mrs. Isobell Irwin of the Red Cross hospital board in Toronto told the gathering that the twinning procedure would not result in a loss of local identity. "The two hospitals would still retain their own name," she commented. She pointed out that administrative control would merely shift from Toronto to the board of the "sister" hospital with a nurse administrator still in charge at the local level.

The meeting was told that the health council hopes the steering committee would have a report prepared by the end of the year. "We would like to see the process take place as quickly as possible, but want to ensure it is carried out as smoothly as possible as well," Ackland stated.

(A number of objections have been raised to the method of selection for the steering committee. See article on page three for more details.)

Child rescued from well

A tragedy was averted Sunday as three quick thinking adults came to the rescue of a four year old who had fallen into a well.

Stacey Russell and a few friends were playing at the home of Neil Burk in Minden last Sunday when the accident occurred.

Norma Burk said she saw Stacey climb up on the well when it suddenly crumbled.

Her husband and a friend, Doug McGee got a rope and while Burk tied it around his waist and jumped in the hole, McGee and Mrs. Burk pulled the child out.

Mrs. Burk said the whole incident took about four minutes.

Stacey's parents, Tom and Cheryl, took their daughter to the hospital but fortunately she had no serious injuries except a scrape on her leg.

Mrs. Burk said they had just had a new well cover put in a year ago but said she was worried about this type of thing happening with other people's wells that have older covers.

Tom Russell said the problem with newer well covers is that they are not being constructed with reinforced wire embedded in the cement. The wire provides needed protection.

Mrs. Burk said she had received several calls from friends who were also worried about their wells.

Council cancels mileage perk

Members of Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council who live outside the village of Minden will no longer receive compensation for driving to and from council meetings. The decision to abandon the 22¢ per mile stipend was taken at the April 22 meeting.

Only one councillor, Larry Cummins, who lives just north of the Mountain Lake bridge was eligible for the payment.

Councillor Lyle McKnight pointed out that if a property owner who resided outside of the municipality was elected to council, the mileage payment precedent could become a heavy financial burden on the township. "Imagine what it would cost to cover the expenses of a councillor to drive from Toronto several times a month to attend meetings," McKnight stated.

The councillor said the situation had occurred in the past in another municipality and he did not want to see it repeated here.

Cummins indicated he was willing to give up the payment and offered to sign the resolution withdrawing it. However, the change will require an amendment to the initial by-law and that was not ready for the April council meeting.

Once the by-law is amended the councillor will still be eligible to claim the expenses incurred during his first five months in office.

Ontario is 2500 trees richer this week as a result of the efforts of members of the Minden Scouting Group. Close to 25 Scouts, Cubs and Beavers, including Bryan Rivard, son of Joan and Dan Rivard, were in attendance Saturday with some of their parents and leaders to plant the trees on the Lloyd and Helen Johnson farm in Blairhampton. The project is part of the annual Trees for Canada campaign.

Race track proposed for Minden Fairgrounds

A proposal to build a race track at the Minden fairgrounds has been taken under consideration by the township council and the Haliburton County Agricultural Society. A plan to install such a track was presented at the April 22 meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council.

The proposal was presented to the councillors by Tom Prentice. He noted that several years ago there had been discussion about the possibility of establishing a horse racing track which could be used by cars, motorcycles and go-carts, the facility could become a major attraction for the community.

Prentice noted that ice car racers have already been using facilities in the area and motorcyclists and go-cart enthusiasts have enquired about racing in the area. "The go-carts in particular need a level track," Prentice told the meeting. "If we could provide one it is likely the various sporting clubs in the province would make use of it."

Prentice said it would be possible to lay out a track 40 feet wide with a total distance of nine-tenths of a kilometre, or close to half a mile. He said that when the track is not in use, other activities such as the annual county fair could be on the area.

President of the agricultural society, Jerry Pillsworth, commented that horse racing is no longer a major event at fall fairs. "There are just not enough horses around to make races at small fairs worth while," Pillsworth told the meeting. He said race tracks at such fairgrounds as Kinmount, and Lindsay have not been used for races in years.

Pillsworth said that since this was the first he had heard of the proposal he was not prepared to offer an official comment on behalf of the agricultural society. He said he wished to discuss the matter with the directors.

Concern was expressed for the residents whose property abutt the fairgrounds, particularly for the noise which could result from car or motorcycle racing. Prentice said special fencing could be installed and regulations requiring the use of mufflers be imposed on the participants to dampen the sound.

Prentice asked that the municipality assist in determining the grants which might be available for the construction of such a track. He said the initial facility could probably be installed for around $7500. This figure did not cover the cost of fencing around the track.

"I know we would have no trouble attracting cars for both summer and winter racing and motorcycles and go carts for winter races," Prentice told the council enthusiastically.

Downhill ride new attraction

The Haliburton Highlands should have a new tourist attraction this summer if all things go according to plan.

A giant slide, similar to the one now in operation in the Collingwood area, is to be erected on the side of the Skyline Park hill.

Known as the Sky Rider, the facility is being constructed by a local company headed by Steve Bowskill. The installation of the slide and the chair lift to carry riders to the top of the hill is expected to cost close to $600,000.

July 1 has been set as the expected opening day. Partial funding for the attraction was also provided by the Eastern Ontario Development Corporation.

Bowskill said the ride will be in operation six months of the year and should employ 25-30 people.

The slide is described as a summer bobsled run in which patrons climb aboard a small plastic sled for a speedy ride down the twisting and banked course. The ride will end at the Haliburton arena parking lot area.

The cut through the forest on the side of Skyline Park hill marks the location of the chairlift for the Sky Rider.

The operator of the ride said the chair lift is currently under construction at the factory and installation should begin shortly. The company which designs the ride is taking advantage of the contours of the hill Bowskill commented. "Rides such as these are usually found on ski hills where chair lifts are already in place. Since certain areas have to be preserved for ski runs on those hills, the slide makers are restricted in the design. However in this case they have a free hand in designing the downhill run."

He also noted that this will be the only slide ride of its kind located right in the centre of a community. "All other rides are tied in with ski hills and therefore outside of the community," he commented.

According to information supplied by the ride operator, the Collingwood slide, which opened four years ago, attracts hundreds of thousands of tourists annually.

Tickets for the slide have been pegged at $1.50 for children and $2.50 for adults.

BIA holds first meeting

Describing the meeting as a "pleasurable evening," Councillor Ed Pergolas told the members of the Anson Hindon and Minden township council the lack of an official plan for the municipality could be a stumbling block for Business Improvement Area (BIA).

Reporting to the April 22 meeting of the council, Pergolas said he felt the initial meeting went well, and that a number of important issues, such as lighting for the core, sidewalk and street repairs, among others, were brought forward.

He told the council that Gord Monk was elected chairman of the BIA with Ron Wrightman being selected as vice-chairman.

The councillor noted that most of the provincial assistance plans for core areas require the community to have an official plan, something that is lacking here.

He said the board of directors has agreed to meet this week to design a plan of improvement for the core area. Once the directors have reached an agreement, the program will be presented to the other merchants in the core for their consideration.

"I was really amazed," the councillor said, "that everyone agreed something needed to be done in the downtown area." He indicated that he was optimistic about the organization's future.

Council pressed again on island causeway

Another chapter has been added to the continuing debate over the Schuyler Island causeway on Horseshoe Lake. The latest installment came at the April 22 meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council when Orville Eagle, a property owner on the lake, spoke to the meeting.

Mr. Eagle requested the council open a portion of the causeway to allow water to flow freely around both sides of the island. He said that since a bridge in the causeway was replaced by a number of culverts, the beach area near his cottage has been deteriorating. He said the area, "which once contained the finest sand beach on the lake," has become silted in and, when the wind stirs the waters near the causeway, it clouds the water by his cottage and makes swimming impossible.

Presenting copies of various letters which traced the consultation between Horseshoe Lake property owners, the municipality and various provincial ministries, Eagle told the meeting that all indications point to the re-installation of the bridge. He said if the water was allowed to flow freely around the island, the silt problem would disappear.

Members of council noted, however, that Ministry of Transportation and Communication experts had said the work would not be eligible for subsidy.

In response Eagle read a letter from the Minister of Transportation, James Snow, which indicated the project would qualify for normal subsidy amounts from the province. That letter was written in 1978.

"We're at your mercy as property owners," Eagle told the councillors. "Our property has deteriorated, the swimming is poor a great deal of the time, and the sandy beach bottom has disappeared. It seems the township doesn't want to spend the money to help us."

Deputy Reeve Doug Pritchard, who chaired the meeting as Reeve Lloyd

Walker was still on vacation, said that was not the case. "No one has assured us the re-installation of the bridge or the culvert will solve the problem."

Councillor Lyle McKnight said that if MTC had advised the township to install the bridge, had supplied help with engineering, and was willing to pay the usual subsidy, the township would be willing to proceed. "We have never received such suggestions," the councillor commented.

The deputy reeve promised the council would once again contact an MTC representative to obtain a definitive answer on whether the ministry would be willing to provide funding to change the causeway.

Objections raised to council's hospital steering committee

The method of selecting members of a steering committee to examine the future of Minden and Haliburton Red Cross hospitals has caused objections from a number of individuals in the county. A meeting, to discuss these objections and perhaps draft an alternative to the one suggested by the district health council had been called for Tuesday evening (April 28) in Haliburton. (Since the meeting is being held following press time, a report on the gathering will be contained in next week's edition.)

One of those who feels there is not enough local representation on the steering committee, is Haliburton County Warden and Reeve of Dysart et al, Murray Fearrey. He told The Times Tuesday morning that, "There appears to be a general feeling that Haliburton County is not going to have a very great say in the future of the two hospitals." Fearrey said the two communities are quite capable of deciding the future of the hospitals in their own communities and expressed concern that representation from the local level was not greater on the steering committee. He was also concerned the health council exercises ultimate control over the committee selection and recommendations.

At a meeting Wednesday evening the district health council outlined plans to create a steering committee to study the transfer of the two facilities from Red Cross control to local control. The steering committee would consist of three representatives of the health council, an elected representative from each community, a health professional from each community, and four citizens chosen at large, two from each village and two from the surrounding areas. The committee will make recommendations which will be presented to the health council for approval before being passed on to the Ministry of Health.

Fearrey was critical of the Red Cross organization in Toronto. He said they should have been in touch with local councils to obtain their opinions on what should be done with the hospitals before handing the matter over to the health council.

"There was a reference Wednesday evening to the health council acting as a 'referee' between Minden and Haliburton. I don't think that is the case," Fearrey commented. He said the two communities have shown in the past that they can resolve differences when it is for the good of the entire county. He said the two communities are united in their wish for good health services for the area.

Ken Morely, chairman of the Haliburton Red Cross said the meeting Tuesday evening had been called to make people aware of the changes that are taking place in the local hospitals. He said that many of those who were involved in building the present facilities were not in attendance at the health council meeting Wednesday evening and they should be made aware of what is being proposed.

Morely said he was upset that there was not more local representation on the steering committee and that the health council is the body to decide who should be members of the committee. He said the council had not obtained any input from the local elected councils.

The Red Cross chairman said many people in the community shared this concern. He said the meeting was being called to inform them of what was taking place.

Minden's representative on the district health council Paul Heffer, noted Tuesday that the health council had been given a mandate by the provincial government to recommend how the two hospitals should be transferred from Red Cross control. Heffer pointed out that this followed normal procedures in that the Ministry of Health relied on the council to provide guidance on local health matters.

The representative stated that the council has selected the steering committee proposal with an eye to maintaining as much local input as possible. He said all voting members on the council will be from the Minden and Haliburton area. He said it was likely himself and Haliburton health council rep Barb Pierce, would be the two appointed from the council. The chairman, Jim Swanson of Peterborough would hold non-voting status on the council. Heffer noted that all other appointees would be from the Minden and Haliburton areas whether they were elected officials, medical personnel or representatives of the public.

"If it is the size of the committee which the Warden is concerned about, that matter can certainly be re-examined," Heffer stated. The health council opted to keep the steering committee small to make it more effective. However, if the objectors feel a larger committee would give fairer representation, I'm sure the health council would certainly consider it."

Heffer emphasized that the health council was not trying to "pull a fast one" on the people in the area. "We all want to see the best possible health care in the two areas," he commented.

Heffer was undecided as to whether he would be attending the meeting Tuesday.

Rob Luke, chairman of the Minden Red Cross refused to comment on the objections raised by the Warden and the Red Cross chairman in Haliburton. "I want to do a little more digging and get a little more information before I starting swinging at anyone," he commented. He said he did not plan to attend the Tuesday night meeting although members of the local Red Cross and others were planning to attend. "I'm not going to be stamped on this matter," Luke stated.

Eakins to watch MNR

Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins is the new Liberal critic for Natural Resources. Appointment to the post was announced late last week.

In an interview Monday, Eakins said he was "looking forward enthusiastically" to his new job.

"We have such a remarkable province, rich in so many natural resources, but our citizens must be assured that these resources are being managed to the best possible advantage," he said.

Liberal leader Stuart Smith, impressed with Eakins' work during the previous session of the Legislature, said, "He has done fine work as our tourism critic, especially, in connection with our successful tourism task force. I have no doubt whatsoever that he will be equally effective as natural resources critic."

Eakins said he was particularly interested in working closely with the Ministry of Tourism because it complements natural resources.

He said he also wants to make sure the interests of Haliburton County are a major part of his work.

Eakins said he has met briefly with the newly appointed Natural Resources Minister Alan Pope and he hopes Pope will be open to alternative suggestions and not act in an "arrogant way without consultation."

Although he could not be specific, Eakins said he intended to prepare for his duties by spending a fair amount of time reviewing the different areas of his responsibility and discussing them with people in industry.

Eakins sees his role, not as a critic, but as a spokesman.

"I don't want to find fault all the time but offer constructive alternatives."

A wise decision

Anson Hindon and Minden township council has seen fit to do away with a provision that would allow councillors who reside outside the municipality to claim a mileage fee. While only one of the present members of council was able to claim the 22¢ per mile which was allotted, it was a wise move.

We agree that councillors should be compensated for travel expenses which result from leaving the municipality on township business, but certainly travel within the boundaries of Anson, Hindon and Minden, especially to attend meetings, should be considered part of the job.

The council itself realized the potential for excessive expenses which existed if a property owner from outside the municipality were to be elected to the council. It wouldn't take long for a Toronto-based councillor to punch a big hole in the municipal budget by claiming the $66.00 round trip mileage charge each time he attended a meeting.

Even though there wasn't much at stake this time, the council showed admirable restraint in retracting the mileage expense allowance. It is the sort of restraint many citizens wished our council might have demonstrated last month when they endorsed stipend and expense increases plus health care coverage.

A young boy waits

Next Tuesday the fledgling Big Brother organization will be holding an information night at Archie Stouffer Elementary School. The evening will include the showing of a film on Big Brothers and an opportunity to talk with members who are currently part of the organization.

Big Brothers is a group which matches volunteer men with fatherless boys. These are boys who have lost an important reference point for their formative years. Through death, divorce or separation they must grow up without the companionship and love of a father.

Big Brothers does not attempt to replace a missing father. That would probably create too great a strain on the volunteer, his own family and the boy's family. Instead, through careful matching, the organization attempts to provide a mature, adult male whom the boy can use as a model as he grows older, and individual he can turn to with questions only a father can answer, a person who is a friend, companion, confidante and role model.

It sounds like a tall order to fill, and in some ways it is. But the Big Brother program is also a non-pressure type of organization. It is simply a matter of taking the time to share experiences with a youngster each week and allowing the relationship to develop at its own speed.

Interested? This Tuesday at 8 p.m. find out more at Archie Stouffer School. Or, if it is more convenient, the following Thursday at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, again at 8 p.m.

A young boy is waiting for his Big Brother to call.

Your help needed for HHSS student loan fund

The Executive Committee of the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Scholarship Fund held an emergency meeting at the High School April 23 to consider the financial condition of its Students Loan Fund.

This fund had been started by Mr. Clarence McInerney, Principal of the Minden Continuation School, in the early 1950's to assist his students who wished to continue their education following graduation, but were experiencing financial problems. The fund was managed by an organization known as The Minden Old Boys Educational Foundation, because it was funded by past graduates of the Minden School System.

When the present Secondary School was opened in 1953, The Old Boys moved into the new school system and the organization expanded to include the county students and it became known as Haliburton County Old Boys Educational Foundation. The funding was thus enlarged by new donations as well as the finances held by The Minden Students' Council.

This new organization was very active for many years as the government was not involved in those years in assisting students. As a result, the Loan Fund was continually very short of ready cash.

However, the original directors of the County Old Boys, such people as Clarence McInerney, Anna English, Harold Herlihey, Clayton Rogers, Phyllis Hodgson, McColl Prentice, Ronald Curry, Walter Noice, with the assistance of the Haliburton

Rotary Club were able to loan money to qualifying students at almost no interest. The students were to begin repaying the loans after graduation and getting employment. In this way the fund rotates serving the needs of each successive class. These students have been exceptionally faithful in meeting their obligations.

The County Old Boys requested amalgamation with the Scholarship Fund a few years ago with the understanding that the Loan Fund would continue as a separate fund and retain the same aims and objectives.

This union was accomplished with the Loan Fund directors becoming members of the Scholarship Fund Council. This Council is principally composed of the donors of the awards.

The reason for the emergency meeting of the Executive was due to the inability of the Scholarship Fund, for the past two years, to meet all the requests of qualifying students for loans. The fund has limped along giving loans in installments as return payments came in.

The increase in the number of requests is due to several reasons:

- the increase in the number of students taking advanced studies,

- the high cost of living - board, room, clothes, transportation, etc.,

- the steadily increasing educational fees,

- the difficulty in obtaining summer employment that pays enough to make substantial savings.

Admittedly, the government is now giving grants and loans, and the Scholarship Fund is giving scholarships and bursaries. However, many students are not able to qualify for these, and those who do cannot always get enough money, or to get it soon enough to cover their needs.

As a result of the Executive's discussions it was decided that for the first time in its history the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Scholarship Fund would make a public appeal for assistance, and the money received to be placed in the Students' Loan Fund. For those who make donations a few points should be mentioned:

- this is a registered charitable organization and, as such, receipts for income tax purposes will be issued for all donations,

- donations will also be acknowledged in the Awards Night programme,

- if large donations are received they will be acknowledged on a plaque placed in the foyer of the Secondary School - a promise of a donation of this plaque has been given,

- all donations will be used in their entirety for student loans. The Scholarship Fund has at no time ever used any of the funds donated to it for administration expenses.

Finally, the Executive wish to stress that this is an appeal for assistance for the ambitious students of our county, who after using the money will pay it back so that it can be used again by the students who follow them through our Secondary School.

(For more information on how a donation can be made to the Student Loan Fund, contact Louise Cooper at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, 457-2950 or Bob Herlihey, 286-1194. The preceding was prepared by M. Robertson Herlihey, chairman of HHSS Scholarship Fund)

by Ron Reid of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists

Now that the dust has settled from the Ontario election, perhaps it's time to look back and reflect on some of the implications of a renewed government for the environment. Those implications follow two paths - the results of the vote itself, and the results of changing faces.

The new faces are obvious, but so far their views and biases largely unknown. Keith Norton faces a controversial term as Minister of Environment, dealing with waste disposal sites, acid rain, and environmental assessment. In Natural Resources, Alan Pope from Timmins is a logical choice, since he will be coping with many of the conflicts over use of Crown land. His relative lack of experience is shared by Russ Ramsay, whose first Cabinet posting is the low-profile Secretariat for Resources Development.

These new faces, combined with a return to majority government, could herald a period of uncertainty in provincial environmental policies. Already a major industry lobby is pushing for repeal of legislation passed in 1979 which makes industry responsible for spills of toxic materials. We are likely to see much more of that sort of pressure in the coming months.

The relationship of environmental issues to the individual decisions in the polling booth is difficult to determine, since environmental issues did not form a major part of the campaign. However, in the sixteen ridings along the Niagara Escarpment, where the government's plans to protect natural areas have come under heavy fire, an interesting pattern emerged. Not only did the Progressive Conservatives hold their four previous ridings, they also picked up two new seats. The Liberals, who had portrayed themselves most strongly as anti-Escarpment, stayed even. In the seven northern ridings, where the Escarpment plan is most controversial, there were no changes, but all except one Liberal had a reduced margin, and all three P.C.'s substantially increased their lead.

Based on this simplistic overview, then, it appears that the Niagara Escarpment issue certainly didn't hurt Bill Davis in the election, and might even have helped. Let's hope that the Premier and his colleagues remember that when the Escarpment plan comes to Cabinet for approval later this year.

REPORT FROM PARLIAMENT

by William C. Scott, M.P.

April 14th, the House of Commons passed Bill C-42, a Bill designed to convert the Post Office department into a Crown corporation.

The Bill now goes to the Senate, and it is expected that the new corporation could become operational by next September.

This marks the second major change in the Post Office that I have witnessed since I came to Parliament in 1965.

First I saw the traditional Crown and Royal Mail replaced by the name Canada Post/Postes Canada, and with the passage of Bill C-42 I see the Post Office eliminated as a senior government department and added to the almost endless list of Crown corporations.

During those years I have also witnessed a steady decline in the quality of mail service, an increase in postal rates, and a department wracked by strikes and internal strife unprecedented in our government.

It is hoped by all of us in the House, and indeed all Canadians, that this latest

89 speeders discover-- Minden OPP now have their own radar

Constable Brian Dunham shows off Minden Detachment's latest acquisition - its own radar speed measuring device. After sharing this particular device with Coboconk, Minden now has it full time while Coboconk got another model. The radar head, attached to the window, picks up the speed a vehicle is travelling then the control box clocks the speed. Police report 89 drivers so far this month have become acquainted with the radar.

In addition to the radar, the local detachment has also seized a number of "fuzzbusters", devices that warn drivers when they enter an area under surveillance by radar. The machine, seen on the dashboard, is illegal in Ontario. The machines cost $140 to buy, but can be extremely costly for the driver if he is caught with one. Fines range up to $500 for possession of the device.

Township switches insurance firms

A change in insurance companies has saved the townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden over $7000 in premiums. However, at the same time, at least two local insurance agencies have lost the municipality's business.

The council decided at the April 22 meeting to accept an offer from the Ontario Municipal and Education Insurance Brokers of Toronto (OME). The company agreed to provide the coverage, which the township now has, for $9,551. The municipality had been dealing with Frank Cowan Insurance for the last few years. That company had offered to renew the township's present coverage for $16,725.

Changing insurance companies was recommended by Councillors Lyle McKnight and Larry Cummins who met with the OME representative a week earlier. He had assured the councillors that the company could supply the same coverage at a lower price.

Ed Pergolas was reluctant to accept the bid of the new company. "It sounds like pie in the sky," he commented. "I get suspicious when the insurance agent has all the answers."

Both McKnight and Cummins said they were impressed with the presentation made by the insurance representative. They said his quote was based on the existing municipal coverage but without knowing what the township was paying for it.

All members of council pointed out that changing insurance companies would mean a loss of business for two local agents, Floyd Hall Insurance and Mark S. Vasey Insurance. However, the council accepted the recommendation of the two councillors and agreed the difference in premium costs was too large to ignore.

According to information presented by the OME agent, the company represents a soon to be co-operative insurance effort sponsored by the Rural Ontario Municipalities Association (ROMA). The agency groups all municipalities under one coverage scheme rather than assessing each separately. By doing so, it greatly reduces the costs and shares the risk among the participating municipalities.

It was pointed out that at one time Cowan Insurance was insuring virtually all the townships in the county and that company might have considered a similar scheme to reduce premium costs.

The new insurance policy will be retroactive to March 13 when the old policy expired.

Post office gets ramp

Construction started this week on a new entrance to the Minden post office.

When the work is completed it will mean that post office patrons in wheel chairs will have access to the building. The ramp will stretch from the present door level to the sidewalk.

A Bancroft construction company is carrying out the changes for the Department of Public Works.

A spokesman at the post office said the alterations were considered necessary, not only for local individuals who are confined to wheel chairs, but also for the visitors to the area who use wheelchairs.

The work is expected to be finished next week.

Bill Scott

change will signal a beginning of better relations between the government and the Post Office employees, and also an improvement in the quality of mail service.

Simply changing the name of the Post Office will not bring with it a magic solution to the troubles in the department, but we in the Conservative Opposition supported the Bill because we believe that it will be worth the risk to restore credibility and efficiency in our postal service.

The person selected by the government to head up the new corporation has impressive credentials. He is Michael Warren, a 43-year-old career public servant who has been described by associates as a "canny operator."

Warren set up the Ministry of the Solicitor General and the Ministry of Housing in the Ontario government, and is considered an exceptional manager and administrator.

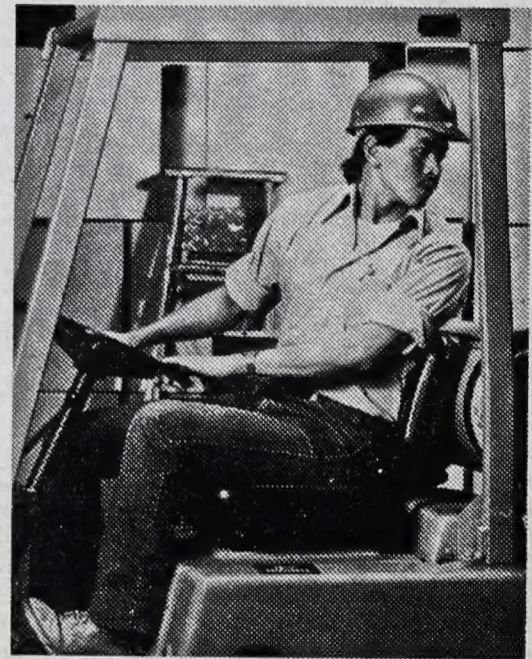

Warren plans "very early in the game" to try to resolve the problems represented by 28 separate unions bargaining for 65,000 postal employees; poor morale; a bad corporate image, and other problems that he sees as the "human side" of the Post Office situation.

Both the government and the unions have said that they favour the new Crown corporation structure for the Post Office. It only remains to be seen if they will now work together to give us the kind of postal service that we have a right to expect.

Concentration is reflected in Kelvin Mann's eyes as he lines up a shot during the Minden Billiards annual tournament Saturday. Kelvin won the championship while Dwight Thomas captured the consolation series.

The activities for the week began with our regular fun and fitness session on Monday morning. This activity happens four mornings out of every week and keeps our residents active. Later in the afternoon the ladies went to crafts. Our ladies are making some very nice bazaar items among which are some beautiful knitted afghans.

The first movie this week was entitled "An Invitation to Italy". The film told the story of how people from all over the world journey to Italy for a musical vacation and to study music. Music festivals are conducted in 19th century cathedrals. Opera and ballet dancing are studied there as well. The next movie was filmed in Umbria and showed the beautiful ancient buildings and told the history of Italy.

The chapel service was held Tuesday morning with the Salvation Army. As always our residents enjoyed their message.

The bingo lovers gathered in the lounge later in the afternoon for a game. There were several lucky winners.

Later in the evening Ray Jenkins was here to play the piano for Music Night. Everyone always enjoys Ray's visits and his toe-tapping music.

Wednesday evening the residents enjoyed crokinole, euchre and cribbage with the games assistants from Haliburton High School. It was a very enjoyable evening for all.

The ladies of Gooderham Pentecostal church brought a delicious variety of goodies for the Thursday tea party. After the lunch was served we had a sing-song with Julie Hunter accompanying on the piano. Julie also sang Amazing Grace for us. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the music and the delicious lunch.

Friday afternoon Grace Coburn and Norma Barron were here to lead the sing song. Grace sang Land of Hope and Glory beautifully. The song was requested by Mrs. Mary Oliver. It was a lovely way to end another week of activity at Hyland Crest.

Green Thumb corner

Producing good quality apples and pears can be a challenge for the home gardener. There is good news, however, for those who believe in the magic of sprays, chemicals and potions to banish the impact of insects and disease. Craig Hunter of the Soils and Crops branch of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, offers an overview of the chemicals available to the gardener in the battle for the perfect apple.

Producing quality apples and pears in the home garden is a great challenge to any horticulturist. The array of pests, and diseases to overcome is staggering. A commercial grower sometimes sprays 10 or 12 times a year, spending more than $500 per hectare ($200 per acre) in chemical costs alone. The home growers who are willing to accept slightly less than perfect fruit can make a substantial saving in time, and cost of pest control.

Now you can buy apple trees that are resistant to apple scab. If you already have McIntosh or Delicious trees, however, accept the fact that scab attacks at every opportunity. This fungus disease needs rainfall to initiate its growth. It overwinters in last year's leaves, and its spores are "shot" into the air in the spring. They can travel long distances, before they land on new leaf tissue. Fungus spores germinate and grow into the leaf tissue. Later, this growth produces new spores on the leaf, that wash down onto fruit and cause scab growth on them.

At all stages of growth up until late June, protect new leaves and fruit from these spores with a fungicide. If new growth occurs, or heavy rainfall (5 centimetres or 2 inches) washes off the previous fungicide coating, apply fungicide. Applications at 10-day intervals are usually required. If the spores land on the fungicide, it kills them. If infection has begun, it will not be killed. However, you can prevent further infections if subsequent fungicide sprays are adequate.

Scab is a serious disease, and it is quite a time-consuming chore to protect against it.

Pears are subject to another scab fungus. However, it is seldom of importance outside the Niagara area. If you have had a problem in the past, use the same rules for fungicide protection as for apple scab. Other diseases which may occur are mildew, rust and fireblight. They are seldom of a continuous or serious nature, but they do cause problems in sporadic outbreaks.

Fireblight is caused by a bacteria that attacks the flower, and later the young shoots and branches, of both apple and pear. A "shepherd's crook" appearance on the end of a "fire-blackened" shoot is characteristic. Prune out these branches in mid-to-late winter. Disinfect pruning shears with a 10 per cent Javex solution after every cut to prevent spreading bacteria to each fresh cut.

Mildew and rust affect only apples. Mildew usually is confined to the shoot growth. Use benomyl or sulphur fungicides for scab control to discourage this disease problem. For rust, use of ferban fungicide for scab in the pre-bloom and calyx stages to discourage its development. Rust is seldom a problem, except in eastern Ontario.

Turning to insects, there are a number of considerations. Apple maggot and codling moth are the biggest problems on apple. Insecticide applications on a two-week interval from calyx to late August will usually eliminate most serious buildups. Any caterpillars appearing in the spring can be killed with a pre-bloom insecticide. However, it is critical that no insecticide is applied during blossom time, to protect the bees.

For pears, the biggest insect problem is pear psylla. A pre-bloom and calyx spray usually helps control this problem. Continue spraying on a two-week interval to control codling moth.

Mites are of concern on both apple and pear. Usually they can be controlled adequately by adding a miticide to one of the sprays in late June or July.

Home growers can usually buy combination products containing fungicide, insecticide, and perhaps miticide. Each product has a label with explicit instructions about pests controlled, crops it may be applied to, spray timing and safety precautions. Above all else, follow these directions.

The Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food provides a publication Insect and Disease Control in the Home Garden (Publication #164). It offers detailed instructions and valuable non-chemical control means for these and many other problems. Consult your local ministry office for a free copy, or write to the Information Branch, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Legislative Buildings, Toronto, Ontario M7A 1A5.

Remember, it takes considerable effort to control the many pests and diseases of apple and pear. If you follow the recommendations and the instructions on the pesticide labels, you have every chance of a successful harvest at season's end.

MINISTRY SURVEYS LANDOWNERS

The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources is undertaking a mail survey of rural, private landowners in the whole Province. Questions pertaining to many aspects of the Ministry's mandate in natural resources management, which covers wildlife, fisheries, minerals, forests, recreation, and land use in general, are included in the survey. Other questions deal with the attitudes and motivations behind the landowner's varied land use practices with particular emphasis on woodlands.

The survey includes five per cent of the landowners in southern Ontario who have a minimum of 50 acres and ten per cent of the landowners in northern Ontario with the same minimal acreage qualification. There are some 23.5 million acres of private land in southern Ontario which comprises about 13 per cent of the Province's total land area. While the survey covers less than 10 per cent of Ontario total land area, 80 per cent of the privately-owned land in the Province is located in southern Ontario. However, approximately 44 per cent of private forest land is located in the north's 20 per cent of the Province's private land.

The survey is attempting to gather information about several of the landowner's social and economic characteristics and learn of his attitudes toward land and woodlot management. The results of the survey will provide private landowners information on a uniform basis which will be beneficial to the Ministry. The results will be used in establishing improved government services and may lead to new conservation and land management programs helpful to the owner.

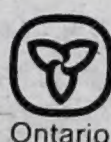

The focus of the survey is the use being made of existing forestry programs on private land in Ontario. This survey is a small part of a comprehensive review of the Ministry's private land forestry program. It will contribute substantially to a green paper on the subject to be presented by the Government of Ontario for discussion by the public next year.

A previous survey was conducted in 1969 by the former Department of Lands and Forests. This earlier survey was limited to southern Ontario, and this year's results will be compared with those of the 1969 survey for changes in landownership and their characteristics.

For the Ministry of Natural Resources, the survey will provide a measure of the reforestation potential, timber availability for industrial development from private land, and the degree of landowner familiarity with various government services and programs. One of these is The Woodlands Improvement Act assistance program which was initiated in 1966.

The 12,400 landowners who are receiving the mail questionnaire during April and May, are encouraged to answer it completely and return it to the Ministry so that the results will be statistically significant.

Questions related to completion of this questionnaire should be directed to the District Manager, Ministry of Natural Resources, Minden, Ontario, K0M 2K0. Telephone (705) 286-1521.

Survey to identify local skill shortages

A program that could train local people in skilled and semi-skilled jobs is in the works and local businessmen are being asked to assist.

The group involved in the project is the Community Industrial Training Committee (CITC) under the direction of another group, the Employer Sponsored Training (EST) program.

EST is responsible for the development of highly flexible training programs to meet specific skilled labour shortages.

CITC's purpose is to identify the local skill shortages and to design training programs to meet the needs of the community.

The industrial training committee was formed last September and one of the first tasks was to set up a needs assessment committee.

The assessment committee has drafted a questionnaire for local businessmen to fill out. Questions range from the types of workers employed to difficulties in recruiting qualified people for certain positions and the anticipated number of employees at specific times during the year over a four-year period.

However, many of the employers have been less than enthusiastic about completing the form. So far, the committee has contacted 50 businesses of which only a small number have completed it. More than 150 businesses received the questionnaire.

Organizers say it would be a shame to pass up this opportunity which could be a boon to both employees and employers.

The questionnaire is essential to the work of the training committee. Once skilled and semi-skilled labour shortages have been identified, the training committee can submit proposals to federal and provincial government agencies for approval.

Once a training program has been established, local people can begin to take advantage of the on-the-job or classroom training. Employers can receive up to $10,000 per trainee over a three-year period, the program stipulates.

This subsidy would apply to a certain number of skilled jobs in which there is a shortage, jobs such as appliance service men, tool and die makers, meatcutters and cooks.

Another advantage for the prospective employee would be that he or she could receive training right in the community. Then, for example, if there is local demand, that person will have the necessary skills and qualifications for the job.

Often, people from outside the immediate area must be called in to do special jobs but the local training program would eliminate that need.

Organizers say they hope the surveys can be completed in May and then work can start to formulate a training program for the area.

Ross Hainsworth of Belleville has captured the championship title in the fourth annual Rockcliffe Hotel Squash Tournament. The event was played Saturday at the Squash Club in Haliburton.

Hainsworth defeated another out of town entrant, Tom Myers of Orillia, in three straight games to take the final match.

Derrell Stamp of Haliburton captured the consolation round with a come from behind victory over John Fitzgerald, also of Haliburton. The players battled it out for close to an hour on the courts before Stamp claimed the victory. The scores in the game were 2-9, 1-9, 9-5, 9-1 and 9-7.

Fourteen players took part in the tournament, including participants from Toronto, Peterborough, Minden and Haliburton. Other local players included Bob Woodcock, Gary Brohman, Ken Rydman and Dave Willis, the host.

During the past 25 years the Minden Kinsmen Club has been involved in numerous projects as a service to our community. It was the Kinsmen Club that donated the first ambulance, boosted the Minden arena fund with a $10,000 donation, and constructed the kids park. The projects continue as well, such as our yearly drive for Cystic Fibrosis, senior citizen's bingo at Hyland Crest and the Minden Winter Carnival. All projects that, without your support, we could not have accomplished. Thank you Minden!

IN MEMORIAM

WARBURTON - In loving memory of our daughter Donna-Lynn, who passed away April 29, 1965.

There is never a verse of any kind
To express the way we feel.
There are always thoughts, and unseen tears
For the baby we loved so dear.

She was so tiny she should never have died.
We shall always remember and wonder why.
Years have wiped away many things.
But years can never wipe away the memories
Of when she was here with us, and we were together.

Ever remembered by
Mom & Dad
